Subject: Violation of Human Rights and Civil Security Following a Military Attack on Iranian Territory

Your Excellency,

With utmost respect,

On behalf of the Iran National Entrepreneurship Organization and millions of Iranian citizens committed to peace, labor, and human development, we submit this letter not as a political complaint, but as a moral and humanitarian testimony.

In recent days, our cities have trembled not only from the sound of explosions, but from deep fear, psychological distress, and a rupture in the public's sense of safety. The direct military aggression by the Israeli regime against Iranian territory was not merely an act of war—it was an assault on the mental peace, civil cohesion, and human dignity of ordinary people: workers, entrepreneurs, and families alike.

We are a nation that, for decades, has endured political and economic pressures with resilience—not through violence, but through creativity and perseverance. Yet this attack has shaken children seeking refuge beneath blankets, stunned mothers unable to find words of comfort, and left workers uncertain whether tomorrow still holds a job for them.

What is at stake is not only geographical sovereignty. It is the fundamental right to live in safety, the right to work without fear, and the right to protect one's family from the sudden violence triggered by another state's military decisions. These are not mere slogans—they are sacred rights enshrined in the Universal Declaration of Human Rights.

Accordingly, we respectfully urge the Office of the High Commissioner for Human Rights to:

- Officially recognize and investigate the psychological and social consequences of this military assault on Iranian civilians;
- Issue a public statement condemning extraterritorial military actions that threaten the lives and well-being of non-combatants;
- Appoint a Special Rapporteur or establish an independent fact-finding mission to urgently examine the human rights dimensions of this incident;
- Extend invitations to representatives from Iranian civil society—particularly those active in the fields of labor and entrepreneurship—to participate in upcoming discussions related to the protection of civilians in regional conflicts.

This is not merely a matter concerning Iran. It raises a profoundly alarming precedent: that in today's world, millions of innocent lives can be directly impacted by the unilateral military decisions of another government—with no accountability demanded, and no responsibility accepted.

We are not seeking political alignment, nor do we ask for sympathy.

What we call for is human solidarity.

What we require is the recognition of silent suffering.

Recognition of fear.

Recognition of human dignity.

Recognition of wounds that make no headlines, yet scar generations.

We sincerely thank you for your attention and action in this vital matter. We trust that your leadership will serve as a beacon of moral clarity in an era clouded by uncertainty and conflict.

With the highest regard,

Hossein Selahvarzi

President
